Group Study is an increasingly popular area for people to work together on homework, projects, study groups or even families working on genealogy.

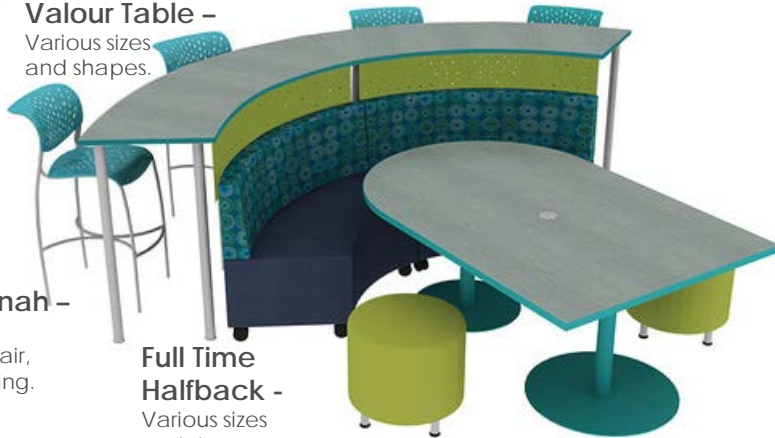

With the use of lounge seating and larger occasional tables, the space can be soft for discussions and research groups or with the use of white board tables and even TVs/monitors, brainstorming and collaborating can easily be accommodated. Some libraries simply need tables and chairs in a room.

Just like every library is unique, each group study space we've done has been tailored to patron's needs and the available floor space. Allow us to help you with different layouts based on your specific requirements!

Custom work areas can be created by grouping various pieces of furniture together.
